

Philip John Kenner Science Scholarship Endowment

Philip Kenner has always been fascinated by scientific inquiry as a major contributor to meaningful innovation. Through diligence and determination, he has transformed that fascination into a rewarding career.

Philip John Kenner was born to Corry and Kristin Kenner in Devils Lake. He graduated from Devils Lake High School in 2005 and benefitted from dual-credit classes and other coursework at LRSC. He went on to earn a B.A. in Biochemical Sciences from Harvard University and an M.Sc. in Molecular Medicine from University College London.

Today, Philip is a Managing Director at ClearView Healthcare Partners in Boston, Massachusetts. He works with life sciences-focused clients to support decision-making as they pursue strategic growth. Philip and his project teams combine scientific and clinical understanding with a strategic commercial perspective to optimize biopharmaceutical innovation and support the development of tomorrow's medicines.

Philip also is a strong believer in limited government and is eager to save funds from inefficient legislative appropriations. When possible, he prefers to redirect funds toward direct investments with long-term benefits, such as support for a student's college education.

Although Philip currently lives in Boston, he feels a deep satisfaction in giving back to the hometown community that provided his foundational education. He knows community colleges serve multiple purposes. They provide a source of learning for talented high school students; they provide an accessible starting place for others to jumpstart a college education; they provide technical skills for students pursuing important trades; and they promote development of skills that will serve students throughout their lives.

Philip established the Philip John Kenner Science Scholarship to support talented students planning careers in the sciences who may have the ability but not the resources to pursue their dreams. ●
